Tips on searching & browsing:

Selecting the “My Subscribed Content” option on Advanced Search or Browse returns only the results of the content to which you have full access.

When searching, try to avoid common words in isolation. For example, searching for “management” will return over 115,000 journal articles. Use more than one word where possible.

- Search results are organised by content type:
 - Journals
 - Books
 - Bibliographic databases
 - Site pages
- From your results page you can carry out a new search, modify your search or save your search (see Your Profile for information on saved searches).

Search results

Example:

Browse

Use “Browse”, if you would like to view the content of a specific journal or book series or find journals/book series in a particular subject area.

You can browse journals, book series, reviews and abstracts (Bibliographic database) as follows:

- Under the “Browse” option on the left-hand menu select either “Books & Journals” or “Bibliographic Databases”
- “Books & Journals” titles are listed alphabetically and you can also browse by subject as the taxonomy is accessible on the same page
- When browsing “Bibliographic Databases” both Emerald Reviews and Emerald Abstract Products results are listed.
