Part II Course Details

1. Abstract

This course aims to provide students with the opportunity to learn a range of theoretical frameworks, linking psychological theory, counselling technique, interpersonal and therapeutic skills that are the foundation of the counselling process. Counselling psychology facilitates personal and interpersonal functioning across the life span with a focus on emotional, social, vocational, educational, developmental, and organizational concerns. It addresses both normal developmental issues and dysfunctional or disordered developmental issues from the individual, family, systems, and organizational perspectives.

2. Course Intended Learning Outcomes (CILOs)

(CILOs state what the student is expected to be able to do at the end of the course according to a given standard of performance.)

A2: Ability

Develop the ability/skill needed to discover/innovate/create, as demonstrated by students possessing critical thinking skills to assess ideas, acquiring research skills, synthesizing knowledge across disciplines or applying academic knowledge to self-life problems.

A3: Accomplishments

Demonstrate accomplishment of discovery/innovation/creativity through producing /constructing creative works/new artefacts, effective solutions to real-life problems or new processes.

3. Teaching and Learning Activities (TLAs)

(TLAs designed to facilitate students' achievement of the CILOs.)

TLA	Brief Description	CILO No.						Hours/week (if applicable)
		1	2	3	4
Lectures and Seminar	Lectures will introduce students to major approaches and models in the field of counselling and psychotherapy, with an emphasis on the existential-phenomenological, psychodynamic, humanistic/integrative orientations.	✓
Recommended Readings and Online Learning	Textbooks and recommended readings per week before each lecture, and online Blackboard provide comments, clarifications, responses, debates, discussions, reviews of teaching and readings.	✓
Hypothetical Case	Offer hypothetical scenarios and indigenous cases in Chinese society through selected Radio Television Hong Kong (RTHK) television programmes.		✓
Video Demonstration	Examine video demonstration by experts from major counselling models and transcriptions of counselling conversations to discern how psychotherapies applied into practice.		✓	✓	✓
Role-play and Live Demonstration	Students will participate in exercises with each other usually in triads of 'counsellor', 'client' and observer - using materials from their own experience. This is an opportunity to practise psychotherapy and counselling skills and receive feedback. Lecturer will perform live demonstration in class.		✓	✓	✓
Student Presentation	Consolidate knowledge and develop applicability of counselling approaches and models as well as clinical practice.	✓	✓	✓	✓
Class Discussion	Classroom discussions organized around intellectual input given in mini-lectures.	✓	✓		✓
Out-of-classroom Reflective and Experiential Exercise	Weekly out-of-classroom reflective exercises and behavioural assignments in daily life practice. Experiential exercises will relate to the theoretical material presented and to the development of active	✓	✓	✓	✓

5. Assessment Rubrics

(Grading of student achievements is based on student performance in assessment tasks/activities with the following rubrics.)

Assessment Task	Criterion	Excellent (A+, A, A-)	Good (B+, B, B-)	Fair (C+, C, C-)	Marginal (D)	Failure (F)
1. Group Presentation: video demonstration	This assignment assesses students' competence in integrating theories and research skills to analyze an issue of counselling practice with reference to a specific case. Students work in small groups of 6, identify an issue relevant to counselling practice, and present their findings in class.	Demonstrate excellent understand of the theories, and integration of these in to the case analyzed. Present the findings in a highly organized and systematic manner. Provide critical and evidence-based suggestions on the counselling approach and its effectiveness.	Demonstrate good understand of the theories, and integration of these in to the case analyzed. Present the findings in an organized and systematic manner. Provide relevant and evidence-based suggestions on the counselling approach and its effectiveness.	Demonstrate adequate understand of the theories, and integration of these in to the case analyzed. Able to present the findings in a comprehensible manner. Provide some relevant and evidence-based suggestions on the counselling approach and its effectiveness.	Demonstrate limited understand of the theories, and integration of these in to the case analyzed. Presentation of the findings is not organized. Provide limited suggestions on the counselling approach and its effectiveness.	Demonstrate very limited and incorrect understand of the theories, and cannot integrate these in to the case analyzed. Presentation of the findings is disorganized, incoherent or even contradicting. Provide inappropriate suggestions on the counselling approach and its effectiveness.
2. Reflective paper	This assignment requires students to analyze the case presented in the first assignment with a counselling approach, formulate related hypotheses and make on-going assessment, present relevant and significant dialogues in the counselling process, reflect upon self-qualities and limitations of being a counsellor, and suggest areas of improvement.	Case being analyzed critically with reference to the most relevant theories and empirical findings, sound formulation of hypotheses and assessment strategies, extensive discussions on self-qualities and areas of improvement.	Case being analyzed with an evidence-based approach, adequate formulation of hypotheses and assessment strategies, appropriate discussions on self-qualities and areas of improvement.	Case being analyzed with reference to theories and empirical findings; demonstration of an ability to formulate hypotheses and assessment strategies, relevant discussions on self-qualities and areas of improvement.	Case being analyzed with reference to limited theories and empirical findings; inadequate formulation of hypotheses and assessment strategies, limited discussions on self-qualities and areas of improvement.	Case not being analyzed with reference to theories and empirical findings; unable to formulate of hypotheses and assessment strategies, irrelevant discussions on self-qualities and areas of improvement.
3. Term paper	This paper examines the problems of pain and suffering. For examples, it will seek to answer the questions such as "why do bad things happen to good people?" and "What is justice when I need it the most?" Students may interview a person who had gone through a traumatic situation or can share their personal	Accurate and in-depth self-exploration and self-reflection; address the central questions with a logical and critical approach; use the most relevant literatures in discussion, and present ideas in a coherent and highly structured manner.	Accurate self-exploration and self-reflection; address the central questions with a logical approach; use relevant literatures in discussion, and present ideas in an organized manner.	Appropriate self-exploration and self-reflection; address the central questions adequately; able to use some relevant literatures in discussion, and present ideas in a comprehensive manner.	Inappropriate self-exploration and self-reflection; central questions were not addressed adequately; limited use of relevant literatures in discussion, and ideas were not presented in a comprehensive manner.	Inaccurate self-exploration and self-reflection; central questions were addressed poorly; very limited use of relevant literatures in discussion, and ideas were presented in an incomprehensive manner.
