

Notification from the Emergency Response Unit (ERU) (67)

Update on the suspected coronavirus case and alternative teaching and learning arrangement

The coronavirus test on a student the University arranged to send to hospital for examination on 23 January (Thursday) came back negative. This confirms that the student was not infected by the virus, and the student was discharged from hospital.

The University stayed in close contact with the student in the past few days to provide any needed help. "I am very thankful for the practical and effective assistance the University offered," said the student. We wish the student a speedy recovery.

Meanwhile, due to the uncertain situation, the University has tentatively decided to move classroom instruction to online learning for two weeks from 31 January 2020. Preparation is underway and details will be announced shortly.
