Update on suspected novel coronavirus case on campus

The novel coronavirus test on a student resident who returned to Hong Kong from Guangxi on 28 January and was later admitted to hospital for treatment has come back negative.

This test result confirms that the student has not been infected with the virus. The student has been discharged from hospital and there are no outstanding suspected cases at CityU.

The University has stayed in close contact with the student over the past few days and we offered help whenever necessary.

We will continue to remain highly vigilant and closely monitor the situation to prevent the spread of the virus on campus. In case of emergency, staff and students may call our 24-hour emergency hotline: 3442 8888.
