Notification from the Emergency Response Unit (ERU) (70) Update on the suspected novel coronavirus cases

The novel coronavirus test on a staff member who was sent to the hospital for examination on 1 February 2020 (Saturday) came back negative, while the result for another case involving a student is yet to be released. This test result confirms that the staff member was not infected by the virus, and has been discharged from the hospital.

The University has stayed in close contact with them over the past few days and provided them with help whenever necessary. We also wish them a speedy recovery.

The University will continue to remain highly vigilant and closely monitor the situation to prevent the spread of the virus on campus. In case of emergency, staff and students may call our 24-hour emergency hotline: 3442 8888.
