University Announcement

Notification from the Emergency Response Unit (ERU) (112) Students calling police to campus

The University has been informed that a few days ago, several male and female students had once again been found to be staying overnight without authorisation in campus activity rooms for the Students' Union, City Broadcasting Channel, etc. During this period, some students were so drunk that they lost consciousness. Their companions had to call the police in the middle of the night and requested that they enter campus to assist with the situation.

A university is a place for pursuing knowledge, and since we care about students, we strongly advise all students and members of student organisations to be self-respecting and to comply with the Code of Student Conduct. They should act as decent citizens, maintain campus order and disciplines, and safeguard the reputation of the University. The University expresses regret and disappointment over the recurrence of students suspected of contravening codes of conduct in student organisations' activity rooms.

We will look into the matter further by checking the inspection records of our security guards and we will handle any cases that breach the Code of Student Conduct according to established mechanisms.
